

"The Next Pope is John Paul II, Again" Watch the Video produced by World's Last Chance

World's Last Chance has released a video at YouTube explaining why John Paul II will be the next pope after Benedict XVI. (PRWeb) February 27, 2007 -- World's Last Chance online ministry has recently declared an audacious prediction that the next pope after Benedict XVI will be an evil angel impersonating John Paul II, and he will instigate global religious laws. This pope will also be the last in the earth's history.

"Our understanding comes from an unfulfilled, end-time Bible prophecy. This prophecy, found in the book of Revelation, chapter 17, reveals that once the popes of the Roman Catholic Church become sovereign rulers there will be only eight popes until the Second Coming of Christ," stated Dahlia Doss of World's Last Chance. "In 1798, the Catholic Church lost her temporal power over the kings of Europe when Pope Pius VI was exiled. In 1929, however, the papacy was given its own sovereign kingdom and from that time the popes became sovereign rulers over the Vatican City State."

"Since 1929 there have been seven kings/popes. Benedict XVI is the seventh. The Bible prophesized that the eighth will be a demon impersonating one of the seven. You may ask 'which of the seven could it be?' We see a divine hint in the fact that when the Apostle John was given a revelation of this prophecy he was taken to the time of the reign of the sixth king. Moreover, John Paul II ('the sixth king') is the most loved pope in history. This is a confirmation of why the Father of Lies will choose to have him impersonated," continued Doss.

According to World's Last Chance, the prophecy explains that an evil angel disguised as the 'resurrected' John Paul II will claim to have a message from heaven. He will assert that the continually increasing frequency and intensity of natural disasters - which will be multiple times worse than the catastrophic tornadoes that raked across central Florida recently, or even Hurricane Katrina - are due to God's displeasure for disregarding Sunday as His Sabbath day. As a result, all those who insist on keeping God's true Sabbath (Saturday) will be regarded as the cause of the fearful convulsions of nature, strife and bloodshed among men that are filling the earth with unrivaled pain and suffering.

Under the influence of the Papacy's 'resurrected' prodigy and the Protestants of the United States, the USA will enforce National Sunday Laws. Liberty of conscience, which has cost so great a sacrifice, will no longer be respected. All people will be obliged to observe the false Sabbath (Sunday). All who refuse compliance will be visited with escalating civil penalties until it will finally be declared that they are deserving of death.
